

Universal Children's Day November 20, 2017

Children and youth of Ortho-Pedagogical Institute, one of the supported projects of Fracarita International and a school of the Brothers of Charity for students with special needs, celebrated the Universal Children's Day in an exceptional way - they shared the values of children with the college students of De la Salle-College of St. Benilde with a lot of fun!

Not only they played games and secured the venue, but they also provided the transportation of the students. It was an evidence of a child-friendly society as they safeguarded the welfare of the students with those provisions.

With the kind of activity they had, it was certain that these young (college) students have inculcated in their hearts the importance of improving the welfare of children, and with the kind of experience the OPI students it was inevitable that they will eventually make an advocacy for these children.

Look at the smile of the grateful hearts!
